

THE TRUE NORTHERNER.

Published Every Wednesday.

PAW PAW, MICH., SEPT. 30, 1891.

Major McKinley has been in Iowa making an address on the tariff and other great party issues. He is going soon to Boston to address the Home Market club. He could not be spared from Ohio for these efforts in Iowa and Massachusetts if the Republicans of the Buckeye state were not absolutely certain of his election as governor in November.

There is just the same difference between a Democratic administration and a Republican administration, in the estimation of capitalists, as there is between 12 per cent and 2 per cent. The former is the rate at which the Buchanan administration, with considerable difficulty, borrowed money. The latter is the rate at which the present Republican administration has just disposed of over $22,000,000 worth of government bonds.

An Iowa Democratic newspaper says: "Democracy means mind your own business, and make everybody else mind his business, interfering with no man's liberty while he violates no other man's rights." On which the Clinton Herald aptly comments: "Oh, does it? The democracy minds its own business in the South, does it? Interferes with no man's liberty there, does it? Violates no other man's rights there, does it? And what a dried-up, puny putrescence the democracy would be, as a national affair, without its southern portion."

The tin plate makers of this country owe the democratic and mugwump newspapers an everlasting debt of gratitude. Their stubborn and senseless refusals to recognize the existence of the industry here, or the possibility of furnishing domestic tin at the price of the foreign article, has been the means of giving the new factories over half a million dollars' worth of free advertising, in the very best papers, at a time when the manufacturers needed it most, and could least afford to pay for it. Its benefits are already patent, as mills are springing up all over the country.—Lansing Republican.

The Brazilian government intends to make a magnificent display at the Columbian Exposition, and will invest not less than half a million dollars in carrying out the plans for its representation. It is proposed not only to erect a building in which to display the magnificent resources of Brazil, but to surround that building with practical illustrations of the methods of agriculture and industry. There will be a sugar mill in operation, a coffee quinta, at which the method of gathering and curing coffee for market will be illustrated, and the manner in which rubber is gathered and prepared for market will be shown in a similar way. There will be also several fac-similes of native huts, with native families living as they live at home, and pursuing their industries. It is proposed also to have the national band of Brazil in attendance.

Back Comes the Gold.

Shipments of gold to the United States from England have been frequent in the past ten days. On Sept. 24th $100,000 was shipped—half a million dollars. The Press predicted when gold was flowing out of this country last spring that as we began to send breadstuffs abroad this fall the tide of yellow currency would turn.

We are shipping about a million dollars' worth of products to Europe daily at this time. Corn, cotton, wheat, beef, pork and oil are the principal commodities, and they have turned the golden stream our way again.

The aggregate amount of gold sent abroad in the last year has been estimated at $75,000,000. At our present rate of shipments three months will see all this returned, with $10,000,000 to $15,000,000 more added to it.

An English financial authority, Mr. Edward Giffen, declares that the Bank of England will raise their rates of discount and thus check the drain of gold to this country, before they will allow even $10,000,000 to be sent over here. Mr. Giffen cannot have taken into account the fact that Europe must have our breadstuffs at almost any price and must pay for the same regardless of the rate of discount, the increase of which would be merely an additional expense to their own citizens.

The United States, in other words, holds the key of the world's financial situation through its vast crops and invaluable supplies of cotton, meat and oil.—New York Press.

Another Letter From San Diego.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Sept. 17. ED. NORTHERNER:

Since my last letter a varied series of exciting and, in one instance at least, tragic events have occurred here.

On July 4th the United States war ship Charleston entered this port with the Chilean vessel Itata under her guns, and for quite a while both were objects of the liveliest interest. Train after train of excursionists arrived here, and the harbor was alive with small craft carrying the visitors out to the two vessels. While here the Charleston lost one of her crew, who was brutally murdered on the streets of this city by putative deputy marshals. Some time after the Charleston left for Mare Island the Pensacola, one of the oldest war ships in the navy, called here for coal on her way to San Francisco. The United States war ship Ranger, the one which was in the harbor at Acapulco when Gen. Barundia was shot to death on the deck of an American vessel, was here for a time, as was also the Mexican gunboat Democrita. The Itata is all anchored off the Santa Fe wharf, awaiting the result of her trial in the United States court at Los Angeles. This will do as to marine news, though I might add that this port has been recently made a port of call by the Panama mail steamers, and also that of Keewenaw, the first boat of the new line between New York, San Diego and San Francisco, is expected daily in the offing.

The future of San Diego is looking up. It has raised a subsidy of $200,000 for the establishment of an iron plant. Dr. Eames, the projector, is here, the machinery is ordered, and it is stated that before Nov. 1 a plant will be in operation here that will turn out 100 tons of iron daily. Other manufacturers are prospecting, with fair indications of their locating. Add to all this a prosperous fruit year, and the future of San Diego looks brighter.

And why should it not? It has a location in many respects far superior to San Francisco. It has as good a harbor, and its entrance is less dangerous than that of the Golden Gate. San Diego being 300 miles east of San Francisco not only has a great effect upon the climate here, but also leaves far out at sea the cold ocean current from the north which makes San Francisco so cold and foggy in summer. Those dense fogs are what make the entrance to the Golden Gate so dangerous. At this harbor they do not have this to contend with, and though the bay is 13 miles long, the square-rigged British barque Stratheate, 111 days out from Liverpool, came in with all sail set, not dropping a stitch of canvas until she reached her anchorage at Spreckels' wharf, last Friday. Then, to add to the perfection of our climate, sixty miles east of San Diego lies the great basin of the Colorado desert, an immense reservoir of dry, pure air, which, sent aloft by the rising sun, flows in an upper current westward, then, cooling and descending, mingles with the incoming sea-breeze and makes the air, even at the coast, much drier than it is only 100 miles north. According to the published reports of the San Diego signal station, the noonday temperature of winter is never below 50 degrees F., and in summer rarely passes 80°, though it touched 88° this summer, but no cases of sunstroke were reported.

San Diego has many and varied attractions. There is the ride along the bay on the motor to the Coronado hotel, which covers 74 acres of ground; then there is a ride of 16 miles through National City, beautiful Chula Vista, with its grand residences surrounded by fruits and flowers, to Tia Juana, (pronounced Te Wa-na), and there cross the boundary into Old Mexico. On the return trip stop and visit Sweetwater dam, which supplies National City with water, and the construction of which cost $200,000. Its dimensions are: Length at base, 75 feet; length at top, 390 feet; thickness at base, 46 feet; at top, 12 feet; height of dam from bed-rock, 90 feet. The reservoir covers 700 acres, and its capacity is 6,000,000,000 gallons. Then there is a trip by the Cuyamaco railroad out to the El Cajon valley, where the raisin grapes are raised in such abundance. This is considered one of the most fertile and beautiful of all the valleys in San Diego county. Then the cable car line extends five miles north to Mission Valley. At the Cable Pavilion, at the end of the line, you can stand on its broad veranda and look down a sheer wall of over one hundred feet upon the gardens. To the east is seen the ruins of the Old Mission, where Ramona and Alessandro, in "Ramona," were married. To the west you gaze far out on the Pacific, dotted here and there with sails.

Here within a day's ride, in one county at that—San Diego, you can have any climate you wish. Go east, near Yuma, and you will find the thermometer at 140° in the shade. Then, northeast from San Diego, and also east, between here and the Colorado desert, you can climb 5,000 feet of mountain height and get winter nearly every month in the year; while here in San Diego you can get an almost perpetual summer, devoid of the summer discomforts of the east.

Here I rest, having given you all the information that I have been able to acquire; but I have learned enough to satisfy me to spend my remaining days here; enough to be able to say that here one can make a home such as can be seen nowhere else in the United States; a home surrounded by vegetation that is lovely and rare, without the malaria incident to living in Florida, where the breeze is never at rest except at night, yet never too strong for comfort; a home upon which the sun will shine nearly every day the year round; a home, too, from which you can always look out upon hundreds of square miles of great mountains and as many more of the great peaceful ocean.

One thing more I will speak of: The last rain I have seen was in April. As a matter of fact it has rained three times since then, that is, they called it rain, but neither time did it exceed a very slight sprinkle of very brief duration. Yet we do not suffer from want of it, as we are abundantly supplied by irrigation.

Now, to conclude: If one must make a change on account of health, they need not fear the consequences, but it is hardly advisable for a person of little means to come here simply to better his financial condition by cultivation of the soil, because his outlay must be considerable, for, though one does not want so much land as in the east, yet the price per acre is an item that would scare one who is not in the habit of paying over $50 or $100 per acre. Out here in Chula Vista there are five-acre tracts that you can only buy for $500 per acre, and you have to sign a contract to build thereon, within six months, a house costing not less than $2,000. True, land can be bought here for $35 per acre, but that is without water, which you must have. One coming here should be prepared to wait from two to four years for any results beyond a mere living.

I wish to say, also, that many write me letters of inquiry which would gladly answer, though it takes up considerable of my time, but a majority of the writers neglect to enclose stamps for return postage, and this will explain to such why they are unanswered.

MOTHERS AND DAUGHTERS.

Over 12 years I was afflicted with a very serious female difficulty, and for the last sixteen months was under treatment of three of the very best physicians that money could employ. Under their skillful treatment I gradually grew worse, until they decided they could render me no permanent help. One of my friends persuaded me to try a bottle of Dullman's Great German Uterine Tonic, and after taking three bottles, can say I am in better health than I have been for 20 years and am now 60 years old, but feel as young as at thirty.—$1 a bottle. ## CHEATING IN HORSE BLANKETS.

Nearly every pattern of  $\frac{1}{2}$  Horse Blanket is imitated in color and style. In most cases the imitation looks just as good as the genuine, but it hasn't the warp threads, and so lacks strength, and while it sells for only a little less than the genuine it isn't worth one-half as much. The fact that  $\frac{1}{2}$  Horse Blankets are copied is strong evidence that they are THE STANDARD, and every buyer should see that the  $\frac{1}{2}$  trade mark is sewed on the inside of the Blanket.
